Rush Guardsmen To Scene Of Gun Fights

Several Injured In Mountain Dam Strike Zone

GREEN MOUNTAIN DAM, Colo., Aug. 3—(AP)—Colorado national guardsmen equipped with machine guns and two tanks were called in today to restore order in the Green Mountain Dam strike zone, scene of two gun battles last night in which five men were shot and injured.

A sixth man was gashed on the head in one of the clashes between armed and deputized "back to work" forces and sympathizers with the strike called July 12 by fixed craft unions at the $4,000,000 reclamation bureau project.

The injured:

Thomas Kellerhalls, about 35, Denver, shot through the left eye. His condition was critical.

Art Morrow, 43, Denver, shot through the arm.

W. J. Blalock, 26, Denver, shot through the left shoulder.

George Judy, 17, Yuma, Ariz., grazed on the right hip by a bullet.

Art Kuhlman, Denver, shot in the leg

Bill Deming, 28, Dillon, Colo., gashed on the head when pulled from a truck.

Gov. Ralph L. Carr declared a "state of insurrection" last night at Glenwood Springs, where he had gone to meet former President Herbert Hoover, in Colorado for a fishing vacation.

Adjutant General Harold H. Richardson immediately issued mobilization orders for the 45th Tank Company at Golden, Colo., Company B and Battery B of Denver, Company A of Craig, and Battery C of Loveland. By dawn approximately 200 guardsmen were on their way to the strike zone, the first mobilized for active duty in Colorado since 1927.

"Insurrection" Decree

Attorney General Byron G. Rogers said in Denver the order decreeing "a state of insurrection" directed the adjutant general "to move in and take over and bring in law-abiding citizens to aid in restoring order." He said the order did not involve suspension of the courts and other processes of civil government as would occur under a martial law decree.

The dam site lies 150 miles west of Denver on the Blue river, between Dillon and Kremmling, Colo., a mile and a half above sea level.

Kellerhalls, Morrow, Judy and Deming were injured when they and other Denver sympathizers with the strike called by the American Federation of Labor unions attempted to approach the dam site, where 200 non-union men had been deputized and armed.

Townsmen and ranchers of this area aided the "back to work" group in breaking through the union's picket line Tuesday night.

Later, a "back to work" picket line two miles south of Kremmling halted a caravan of Denver strike sympathizers with gunfire, and Blalock and Kuhlman were wounded.

Before the firing started, a small bridge was dynamited on the highway between Dillon and the dam.

Reject Big Fund On Crop Loans

WASHINGTON, August 3—The administration took another beating from the house economy bloc Wednesday, but nevertheless decided upon a "suicide plan" for bringing the much opposed $800,000,000 housing bill to a vote today.

The measure would double the lending authority of the housing administration. It is a companion measure to the lending bill which was killed in the house. Administration leaders concede in advance that it would be defeated.

But the administration men indicated they wanted a vote to pin the responsibility for the bill's defeat on the rebellious coalition of Republicans and Democrats, particularly the latter.

Wednesday the relentless economy bloc carried the congressional revolt to a new victory by rejecting a $119,000,000 appropriation for loans to sustain the price of farm commodities.

Then it passed by a voice vote a $54,192,000 deficiency appropriation bill, minus the loan fund, and sent it to the senate. It did so in the face of a warning by Secretary Wallace that unless the money was made available corn prices would go to 1932 levels, wheat quotations would fall sharply and the prices of cotton, dairy products, wool and rye would be 'seriously" affected.

Coffee To Retire On A Pension

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Robert J. Coffee, demoted from police chief to a lieutenant in the department since it went under state control, announced today his retirement from the force.

Soon after the state took charge of the department, Coffee was demoted to the rank of captain and yesterday he was offered a lieutenant rank. Coffee asked Police Chief Lear B. Reed for a vacation the remainder of this month and a pension beginning September 1. Reed agreed to the plan.

Comb Bottom Of River For Death Weapon

Attempt To Find Gun Used To Kill Mrs. Nancy Gore

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 3—(AP)—Franklin county officers combed the bottom of the Big Muddy river at two highway bridges today in an attempt to find the revolver with which Mrs. Nancy Gore was slain at Benton July 23.

They first centered their activities on Route 13, a mile east of Murphysboro, where they borrowed a flat bottom boat from a fisherman and used grappling hooks. Later they searched near a bridge on state route 51 between Carbondale and Du Quoin.

Meantime, Carl Choisser, cousin and attorney for George W. Gore of Cape Girardeau, Mo., who is charged with murder in the slaying of Mrs. Gore, his stepmother, advised state's attorney, Rea Jones that he would file habeas corpus proceedings if young Gore was not returned to Benton immediately. Franklin county authorities had refused to disclose where Gore was being held.

Prosecutor Jones said Gore, from whom he claimed an oral confession, stood on the highway bridge over the river just east of Murphysboro last Tuesday evening and pointed at the muddy water and said:

Said Gun In Bundle

"The clothes and gun are in a bundle right down there. I put a rock in them to make sure they would sink."

The statement was made, the prosecutor said, while officers were bringing Gore, 32, and his wife, Katherine, 22, back to Benton from Cape Girardeau, where his wife had made a written statement relating that her husband told her of driving to Benton and shooting his stepmother. It was after being confronted with this statement that Gore confessed, Jones said.

Gore identified the clothing in the bundle as the denim overalls and jumper, bandana handkerchief and work shoes he wore during the slaying, the prosecutor said.

Jones said a motive for the slaying had not been established by the officers.

He said the sketchy confession of Gore at Cape Girardeau "did not include any statement which might have disclosed the motive."

Franklin county officers are holding Mrs. Gore without charges but she and her husband are charged with larceny in the theft of $700 at Cape Girardeau.

Papers Ask For Child's Adoption

Papers asking for the adoption of Lawrence Edwin Shebilsky, aged 5 years, were filed in the circuit court by Miss Lettie R. Bratten.

The petition states that the child, whose name was formerly Raymond H. Shebilsky, Jr., is a son of Betty Jane Shebilsky, an adopted daughter of Miss Bratten's sister, Mrs. Lillian R. Pierce.

Miss Bratten asks further that the child's name be changed to Patrick Hall Bratten.

Is Here on Furlough

Clarence E. Faulkner, son of Mrs. A. E. Hughes of 1316 East Broadway is on furlough to August 16th and visiting in Sedalia. Young Faulkner was enlisted in the Second Cavalry, through the Sedalia recruiting station last March, and while visiting the recruiting sergeant today, stated that he was well pleased with his assignment to "a horse outfit." He is in Troop "A", of the regiment, and this is his first furlough.

Find No Trace Of Ship After Distress Calls

Fantastic Series Of Radio Messages During The Night

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Ships and aircraft speeding on a rescue mission off the lower Florida east coast found no trace today of a mystery ship which sent out a fantastic series of distress messages during the night.

Coast guard officials at Jacksonville declared the whole incident "stinks," citing many discrepancies in the overnight messages, but said they must continue their search.

Other sources also expressed belief the signals might be a hoax, perpetrated by some amateur. Direction finders failed to locate the position from which the messages were sent because the signals were too erratic. Vigilance, however, was not relaxed.

A plane from the Miami coast guard base scanned calm seas for more than three hours in the vicinity of Key West—one of four positions given by the unidentified radio operator who reported his vessel was afire and sinking.

Various commercial and coast guard radio stations received the name of the ship repeatedly as Dunkwa, but the only vessel registered by that name, a British oil tanker, was reported at Rotterdam.

Lieutenant V. O. Johnson, pilot of the coast guard plane, said he had discovered nothing to indicate whether the frequently incoherent messages were based on fact or fancy. The coast guard, however, dicided against further search by air unless new information were received.

Drama Before The Kiwanians

Mrs. Ben Solnick, instructor in dramatics at the Conservatory, Amarillo, Texas, formerly Minnie Lee Aleskin, of Sedalia, dramatized characters in Kipling's "The Light That Failed," in a presentation before the Sedalia Kiwanis club meeting in Hotel Bothwell this noon.

Mrs. Solnick was introduced by Abe Rosenthal, program chairman.

Stanton Hudson, Jr., introduced by Paul Hedderick, told of the activities of the Sea Scouts which the Boys Work club is sponsoring.

Clint Davis, attendance chairman, was elected by the club to be a director succeeding R. O. Shellhorn.

A club guest was F. R. Forler, new manager of the Kresge Company store in Sedalia.

I. H. Reed had recovered sufficiently from his recent auto accident, to attend the meeting, and Burney Morriss, who has been at Yellowstone National Park during the summer, resumed his club attendance.

Sales Tax Much Larger

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Missouri stepped more than $1,000,000 ahead of last year's pace in sales tax collections today.

Sales Tax Supervisor G. H. Bates announced July collections were $1,917,712, an increase of $240,687 over July of 1938. The total for the first seven months of this year was $12,834,413 compared with $11,793,346 in the same period a year ago.

State Auditor Forrest Smith last month attributed the increasing revenue to an enlarged collection staff. But after Gov. Lloyd C. Stark cut his appropriations he complained he would have to reduce his staff and predicted collections would suffer.

Taft Willing To Make Race

Ohioan Consents To Use Of Name For Presidency

WASHNIGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio expressed a willingness today to become a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940.

The son of the former president and chief justice stated his position in a letter to George F. Eyrich, chairman of the county Republican executive committee at Cincinnati, which had endorsed him for the presidential nomination.

"I shall be willing when the time comes," Talf said, "to give my consent to have my name designated as the first choice by candidates for delegates (to the National Republican convention) throughout the state."

Taft told Eyrich that his work as Senator was "extremely interesting" and that he preferred it to any other job. He added, however, that he would not "run away from a harder job."

"Whether I am a candidate for any other office," he wrote, "is entirely up to the Republicans of Ohio."

The "unpleasant job" ahead of the next president, he said, is such that "no sensible man could be eager to assume it."

"Unless the whole present tendency of the government is redirected," he declared, "we cannot long maintain financial solvency or free enterprise or even individual liberty in the United States, but the leaders of the movement against New Deal fallacies must have the courage to incur the unlimited displeasure of every vested interest whole selfish purposes conflict with a radical policy of reform."

"Furthermore," Taft continued, "They must work out the very difficult problem of continuing an adequate provision for the less fortunate people through relief, old age pensions, subsidized housing and the like, on the one hand, while on the other restoring financial solvency and the spirit of business iniative and expansion which alone can cure unemployment. This is not going to be easy or pleasant."

Taft told Eyrich that he was "greatly honored and pleased by the action of the Hamilton county Republican executive committee in endorsing him for the presidential nomination."

Wage Drive Against Crime

Be Set In Motion Monday Against The Gangsters

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The federal government today organized one of the biggest crime drives in its history—a coordinated campaign to smash a "crime trust" made up of loosely-linked underworld mobs operating over the nation.

U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill, after a conference with FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, said a national "clearing House of crime" would be set up here to make the drive effective.

The drive will be set in motion Monday with the summoning of a federal grand jury before which Cahill said would be placed a 500,000-word "encyclopedia of crime" compiled by federal agents. It gives names, dates, and complete available information on rackets and gangsters in every state.

Cahill said federal and state prosecutors, G-men, narcotics agents and local police throughout the nation would cooperate in the campaign. It had as its first object the capture of Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, fugitive gangster described by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey as the "most dangerous industrial racketeer in the United States."

Federal authorities said their two-year quest for the former over-lord of the garment and baking industry rackets here indicated he had been protected by a criminal underground railway which enabled him to find shelter almost anywhere.

To destroy this set up, they said, the drive would be directed not only against known criminals, but against political protectors, underworld lawyers, doctors and bankers and others on whom criminals depend for aid.

District Attorney Dewey has estimated the cost of the search for Lepke, who he said headed a $2,000,000 a year racket that sold "protection" to legitimate business firms, at $250,000 annually.

The circus is on this afternoon and will be presented again tonight at Liberty Park.

Bribery Angle Figures In The Risk Inquiry

Letter From Late Charles R. Street Is Introduced

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—A letter in which the late Charles R. Street said he had given a detailed explanation of why he required an extra expense fund after negotiating a compromise settlement of the Missouri fire insurance rate case was in evidence before a federal master today.

The letter was in answer to an inquiry by H. F. Waterman, secretary of the Agricultural Insurance Company, who wanted to know why his company was asked to contribute 5 per cent of the money it received from the settlement toward a $100,000 expense fund.

Dated from Chicago March 23, 1936, Street's reply said:

"Dear Mr. Waterman:

"I am returning receipt for check enclosed in your letter of the 21st.

"It is a long story, but one told in detail to a few in New York, all of the 'big boys' who could be gotten together during the winter vacation season—Messrs. Kurth, Warner, Koop, Sturm, and Haid.

"Will tell you all about it at White Sulphur Springs."

Waterman testified yesterday he was unable to attend the White Sulphur Springs convention of underwriters that year and therefore never did receive the promised explanation.

No Definite Explanation

William H. Koop, president of the Great American Insurance group and Wilfred Kurth, chairman of the board of the Home Insurance Company, have testified at the New York hearing that Street gave them no explanation other than that the fund was for "legal expenses."

Special Master Paul V. Barnett is seeking to learn whether officials of any of the 137 stock fire insurance companies involved in the settlement knew that Street, as the government contends, used the money for bribery.

John P. Rogers, vice president and treasurer of the Insurance Company of the State of Pennsylvania, testified today that Street also had told him that the money was for "legal expenses."

Under he settlement, 50 per cent of $9,893,000 in impounded insurance premiums was distributed among the companies, 20 per cent returned to policyholders, and 30 per cent was set

Housing Bill Killed For Congress Session

Sedalia Office Helps Find Jobs

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The state employment service found jobs for 23,779 Missourians in the first six months of this year—an increase of 56.8 per cent over the 15,161 idle men placed at work in the same period a year ago.

Employment Director Will S. Denham suggested the increase in job placements probably was due to the registration of workers who filed claims for job insurance benefits. They must accept work if it is available.

Job placements by district offices included: St. Louis 11,418, Kansas City 4,028, Springfield 1,676, Joplin 763, Jefferson City 591, Cape Girardeau 363, Columbia 1,015, Hannibal 742, Moberly 369, Poplar Bluff 116, St. Joseph 825, Sedalia 938, Trenton 271 and Nevada 438.

Debate Shifts To Parliament Taking Recess

Halifax Gives An Indirect Warning To The Japanese

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax declared tonight that Britain would be prepared to use her good offices "if and when they could usefully be employed" to mediate the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

He made this statement in a foreign affairs debate in the house of lards after he had given Japan an indirect warning that anti-British agitation in North China could only worsen relations between Britain and Japan "with all the consequences that that deterioration must inevitably bring."

The foreign secretary said the government intended to protect British interests in China and to carry out its obligations to third powers.

The Tokyo formula agreed to by Britain July 22 as a basis for negotiations on the Tientsin dispute, he declared, indicated no change of policy in the Far East. He said those who insisted it did "ignore both the plain terms of the formula and the interpretation of the formula that the government themselves have placed upon it."

The debate shifted to the upper house the attacks on the government's insistence that parliament recess as usual during August and September, a period which many believe will bring international tension.

In a vigorous protest against the recess, Liberal Lord Davies said members of all parties shared the feeling that the government might made far-reaching decisions before October 3, when parliament is scheduled to reassemble. He asked that legislators be consulted before such steps are taken.

Lord Davies declared there were suspicions as to the government's real intentions in negotiating with Moscow for a British-French-Soviet mutual assistance pact and charged that delays in reaching such an agreement were the result of British "dilatory tactics."

Blaze Ruins A Two Story House

Fire of unknown origin practically destroyed a two story frame house at Broadway and Lafayette avenue about 1 o'clock this morning. When the fire companies arrived on the scene the entire interior was a mass of flames and they were breaking through the roof.

There was no one living in the house, but some furniture said to belong to Eddie Hudson was stored in the rooms. The structure is owned by George Weed, said to reside at Fifth street and Massachusetts avenue.

Clears Away One Barrier To Adjourning

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—A house coalition of Republicans and Democrats today killed President Roosevelt's $800,000,000 housing bill for this session.

The latest rebuff to the administration topped off Tuesday stunning defeat of the lending program. Today, as then, the house refused even to consider the legislation.

The vote was 190 to 170.

Amendments To Wait

Soon afterward, house majority leader Rayburn announced tersely that no attempt would be made at this session to consider various broad amendments to the wage-hour law.

Rayburn made his staemen after Representative Lambertson (R-Kas) had protested that the will of congress was being "thwarted" by the leadership in its refusal to bring to the house floor a series of amendments which would have exempted many workers engaged in handling and processing farm products.

Only minutes before, the house had passed a bill exempting from wage-hour restrictions operators of telephone exchanges with less than 500 subscribers. It already had passed the senate and now goes to the president for his signature.

The housing bill defeat cleared away one more barrier to adojurnment but the senate still was faced with a haze of problems on the third deficiency bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—Secretary Wallace's demand for more farm money headed such a variety of last-minute appeals for funds at the capitol today that week-end adjournment plans once more were threatened.

While the house neared a showdown vote on the administration's $800,000,000 housing bill — for which defeat was predicted by Republicans — Wallace and a group of other officials and congressmen besieged the senate appropriations committee while it studied the session's third and last deficiency appropriations bill. Approved by the house yesterday, the measure carried $54,000,000 compared to budget recommendations of $215,000,000.

The secretary of agriculture told senators that failure of the house to provide $119,000,000 for the commodity credit corporation, the agency which makes loans on cotton, corn, wheat and other major farm products, threatened the entire farm program.

He urged that the committee restore to the bill the full sum, which the house eliminated at the insistent behest of an economy bloc.

Senator Adams (D-Colo), acting chairman, said there was no chance the committee would complete hearings and send the bill to the senate today. If the scheduled adjournment Saturday night is to be attained, the senate thus will have to act on the bill in haste.

Hope To Finish Saturday

Speaker Bankhead of the house said prospects were that congress contractor, as collective bargaining agents. The project is a unit of the $44,000,000 Colorado river-

Sees Upturn In Business Soon

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—John W. Hanes, undersecretary of the treasury, said today he believed business was on the threshold of an important advance.

Hanes, at a press conference, said business conditions "look better to me by far than they did 30 to 60 days ago.

"It looks to me like we are on the eve of a big step forward."

The undersecretary said he based his prediction on the piling up of forward orders at factories, low state of merchandise inventories from which orders could be filled, and the "general state of business."

We Expect Much, But We Give Little

We expect a great deal from government. We expect it to maintain order, to protect our property, to maintain friendly yet advantageous relations with other countries. We expect it to feed us if we're broke, to provide work for us if we're jobless, to save our business from bankruptcy with timely loans, to promote in general better conditions of life.

We expect all those things and a lot more. What do we give? Well, we give the taxes we pay consciously or unconsciously, and we vote (some of us) every year or so. At election time, we may even give a few moments to reading the papers or listening to speeches to find out what goes on in public affairs.

By and large, most people contribute no direct time or effort to making democratic government work. Such contribution as we do make is usually confined to criticism of those who are giving their time to make it work, whom we lump under the name of "politicians."

In fact, the pitifully small attention given by the average person to public matters is well shown by a recent survey made by two Harvard professors. Their findings are shown in an article, "Where Does Your Day Go?" in EveryWeek Magazine. They arranged for 103 persons to record in detail how they spent the 1440 minutes of each day. So much for sleep (about eight hours and 24 minutes, by the way), so much for eating, working, transportation, and so on.

And the amount of time devoted to civic and political activities was found to be no more than it takes to pronounce the four words themselves. Only about one-tenth of 1 per cent of the people queried had any such activities whatsoever.

In Germany, everyone puts in certain time at the service of the state. Spain has now instituted such a regime—15 days a year, hot or cold. Countries of that stripe are insisting on a levy of public service, or service to the general interest of all.

We don't want that here. The democratic way is to accept voluntary service to the republic in matters of general interest. That's what the word republic means. It derives from res publicae, Latin for "the public business."

Yet for this public business, the average American has no time, not even the time to be well informed about it. His only interest usually is to squawk about how it is done by those who do take an interest. If you doubt it, just try organizing a committee among your friends for some public purpose, and see how many will actually lend an active hand. Yet the very genius of democracy is the voluntary acceptance of these duties and tasks. It is when they are not accepted that a man comes riding along on horseback and says, "Okay, boys! Now I'LL do it!"

A woman with $10,000 was evicted from a Brooklyn basement. That's the wrong way around. Somebody else should have moved in.

Ridiculous as it is to show fur coats at this time of year, the stunt at least helps one to think of cool weather during a heat wave.

Papers should print good news only, says a Canadian preacher. What, and have seven blank pages?

Doing Something For Youth

The cry that "something must be done for youth" has a modern ring. Yet Columbus, O., has a program which has been going on for 11 years, and which has succeeded in cutting juvenile delinquency by 50 per cent in that time.

The Columbus Foundation of Youth is a community-wide project in which both private and public agencies co-operate. It has enrolled a high percentage of boys and girls between 9 and 17. It has a full-time director, it uses public swimming pools, gyms, and parks, it has a full program of all sorts of child activities, and it charges nominal dues of each member just to give him an added interest. Five or ten cents a month is collected, but nobody is barred if he can't pay it.

Going on the principle that there are no "bad" boys or girls, the Columbus organization has done a valuable job, and the reduction in juvenile delinquency is merely a byproduct of its work, though a highly desirable one. It is a program into whose possibilities any city might well look.

Horse And Buggy Days

Already the horse and buggy has passed from reality to a memory among the elderly and a mere phrase among those who are younger. How many people under forty have ever really ridden in a horse and buggy? Not many.

Yet it is one of the sentimentalities of business that the men wh oused to build business that the men who used to build Flint, Mich., now a center of the motor industry, there is to gather a group of 200 men who used to build buggies there when the Flint Road Cart Co. built the once-famous Blue Ribbon Buggy.

Many of them are in the auto industry today, some in high positions. But all recall nostalgically the days when the last word in transportation was a shiny, high-wheeled vehicle that rolled smartly along the road behind a fast-stepping horse.

The common work men have done together remains one of the strongest ties between them, and draws them more powerfully than many artificially created associations.

California leads all other states in wine consumption. Reformers will blame it on Hollywood, of course.

Most race horses travel about 55 feet a second, says a survey. Except the one you bet on.

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

(Editor's Note— Here is another article in The Washington Merry-Go-Round's sensational series on the Louisiana scandals.)

WASHINGTON — The story of Louisiana, which might be labeled "the Aftermath of a Dictator" shows that Huey Long's successors got their most spectacular income from oil, and their most despicable income from WPA filching.

However, their most consistent day-in-and-day-out revenue came from gambling. And since there are Americans who would have us emulate the dictators of Europe, it pays to study the manner in which this racket, when nurtured by dictatorship, became more flagrant and ruthless in Louisiana than anywhere in the United States.

Gambling in New Orleans may be divided into four categories, all of them lush sources of graft (1) the "handbooks," which are pool parlors that take bets on horse races; (2) the lottery, or numbers racket; (3) the slot machines; and (4) the open gambling establishments which feature dice games, roulette, Klondike and almost everything else.

All of these operate with the approval and protection of the little group of brass-hat dictators who have carried on after Huey Long.

Sumptuous Gambling

One of the largest gambling establishments in the city, for instance, is 118½ Baronne Street, just a few doors from the Jesuit Church and operated under the protection of Seymour Weiss, bosom pal of Huey Long, who recently was indicted on charge of selling the furnishings of the Bienville Hotel twice to Louisiana State University.

Actual managers of "118½" are Joe Brown and Eugene Smith, professional gamblers from Texas. How complete is the protection enjoyed by this lush joint is illustrated by the fact that when the Club Forest, an adjacent dining and dancing place, started to cut in on its business some years ago, Huey Long closed the Club Forest tight.

"118½" is a sumptuous establishment — air conditioned, furnished with every form of gambling device from bird-cage to a roulette "squeeze wheel," and with total equipment costing at least $100,000. But on the tax books of New Orleans, its furniture and fixtures are assessed at a paltry $1,300, and the total tax which this magnificent place pays to the city is an infinitesimal $31.49. To the State of Louisiana "118½" pays only $13.32 annually, making a total tax bill, both state and city, of but $44.81.

It pays to be a part of the Huey Long machine.

Police Protection

Since gambling is illegal in Louisiana, all houses operate with police protection, and an investigation once conducted by State Senator Jimmy Noe indicated that the pay-off began with the officer on the beat and got progressively more generous as it extended to the men at the top. Some New Orleans police actually have built swank $25,000 mansions on Vendome Place, in the most fashionable part of town.

Among those who appear to enjoy more than the ordinary police favors is The Casino, which operates one of the largest Keno games in the city and is run by James Brocato, alias Jimmy Moran, an ex-convict who is the close friend of Mayor Maestri. Moran rides about the city publicly with Maestri, attends prize-fights and ball games with him, and was a colonel on the staff of Governor Leche until the latter resigned.

Moran's partner in operating The Casino is Jerry Woods, who also served time in Atlanta. Another partner is Adam Smith, recently released from the federal penitentiary for smuggling.

This joint does a thriving business in the Oster Brothers' old wagon factory, in front of which a Negro in full uniform used to be stationed to receive customers. When Mayor Maestri head about the doorman he told Moran to fire him. The uniform attracted too much attention.

Note—Maestri's friend Moran boasts that he is the best-dressed man in New Orleans, having 300 suits of clothes, several hundred dollars worth of shoes, once buying $2,500 worth of shirts in one swoop.

White and Colored Gamblers

There are hundreds of small dice games for Negroes in white saloons all over New Orleans, and in some of these places the Negroes and lower type whites shoot craps together. But the most prominent colored dice establishment is The Fair, located on old Magazine Street and operated by Earl Mertzweiller, onther close friend of Mayor Maestri.

Biggest Negro gambler in New Orleans, and also reported to be on good terms with Mayor Maestri, is the famous "Mr. Beansie," real name Edgar Fauria, who is so importnat a figure in the gambling world that he is always accompanied by a white bodyguard, Frank Licalzi, alias "Fungi," whose picture is in the police rogues gallery. These two once got into a dispute with a white policeman named Molinary, and when the latter tried to bring charges against them, the District Attorney's office suggested that it was wiser, for the policeman's sake, to drop the case.

Handbook Racket

Most lucrative business of "Mr. Beansie" is operating "handbooks," or pool-halls for betting on the races. These close when the New Orleans track, owned by Maestri, Seymour Weiss and other Huey Longites, is open. The idea is to send the public out to the track.

But after the New Orleans track closes for the year about 1,500 handbook establishments open up all over the city. All are supplied with a racing news service operated on a national basis by Moe Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher.

New Orleans representative of this service is John Fogarty, son of the late Judge Fogarty. All handbook operators pay a regular rental for this service, and in addition, they pay $60 weekly protection money which goes to certain high politicos.

Some idea as to how closely these handbook establishments cooperate with New Orleans officials can be gathered from the fact that when the handbooks are closed during the local racing season, their employes are registered with the Unemployment Compensation Commission and receive unemployment insurance.

Also, when some of the colored croupiers working for "Mr. Beansie" were found stealing money, the employers had the audacity to go to the Criminal Court and get the cooperation of the District Attorney's office in bringing charges of embezzlement.

While it is difficult to estimate the amount of protection money paid by the handbook industry to New Orleans officials, those in the know conservatively put it at around $10,000 a week.

This is the system built up during the dictatorial days of the late Huey P. Long, but which has blossomed and flourished even more luxuriantly since his death.

Hollywood Actor Will Rush Here For Fair Week Show

Here Big Boy is shown in action with three of his teammates, the Stevens Brothers. This particular skit is entitled "Bear Facts," and in case there should be any doubt on the matter, Big Boy is the one at the right.

640-Pound Bear Goes On Diet To Prepare For Trip

The schedule for the shooting of Paramount's new production, "Untamed," got ail twisted around last week in order that a member of its cast could leave Hollywood to be at Missouri's State Fair here.

It was specifically written into the contract that his scenes had to be rushed through in order that he could spend fair week at Sedalia—and the actor for whom all the rearranging was done was a 640-pound bear.

A Paramount talent scout spent three months traveling all over the country looking for a properly trained bruin before he chanced upon Big Boy in New York. Then he found that Big Boy had been signed up to appear in Schooley's Fascinations of 1939, and that the revue, especially created for the Missouri State Fair, was to open Sunday night, August 20.

The bear was rushed to the west coast and the filming of Big Boy's scenes in "Untamed" was begun at once. Meanwhile, Big Boy has gone Hollywood in a big way and—like most other Hollywood stars—is dieting. He gets a quart of orange juice every morning—vitamins to have him in shape to be rushed half way across the continent within the next few days for his State Fair engagement in Missouri.

Early locomotives carried stacks of baled hay to protect the passengers in case the boiler exploded.

• SERIAL STORY

GHOST DETOUR

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: As the New York College party tours Goldcrest, Christine sees a "professor" leave the group, start toward the old bank building. Her fears are genuine when she sees Franklin run after the man.

CHAPTER XV

CARL QUAIT, alias John Sawyer, now alias Professor York, had been too shrewd to come to Goldcrest in the dead of night to recover the stolen money he had put there. That had been his original plan, right enough, his first hasty impulse when he read the news of re-opened Goldcrest. In fact he had thrown up his job and hastened away expecting to slip into Goldcrest that very night. Then he had started thinking and revised his plan. It had required some patience, but he knew patience was necessary.

Quait, a man of almost 50 years, had hung around mining towns during much of his career, and the rest of his time he had been engaged in "miscellaneous" business enterprises. His biggest effort had been a try at a California factory payroll. It had almost worked, too; but his accomplice in that had become scared and had started shooting. All Quait could do was grab a part of the money and "scram." Even then he had been captured, tried, sentenced to prison for life.

He had escaped because he was an artist at escaping, just as he was an artist at opening windows, doors, locks. When he had found himself with almost $15,000 in hand after the pay roll holdup, he had capitalized on his mining knowledge, slipped by night to the abandoned town of Goldcrest and "deposited" most of his money in the Goldcrest bank itself. Nobody ever came to Goldcrest. He had meant to hide there until the excitement about the robbery had subsided, but he had become lonely. He didn't know the vault combination, but he didn't need to. It would serve to keep any chance prowler out and he himself could open it in half an hour any time, he knew.

He was relying on his ability at picking locks and working combinations when he had come to Goldcrest today in broad daylight. As one of a group of people he would hardly be noticed individually. The old man at the highway turnoff had told him the vault remained closed and locked. All he had to do now was leave the crowd of college folk, slip to the bank unobserved, take out his money and go on his way with it. Perhaps he could even take most of it with him at once, he thought daringly. His umbrella and coat would help conceal the burlap bag until he could reach his car, three of four blocks down the street. All these details he had planned before he entered the bank door, but once he was inside he dropped his casual manner and almost ran to the vault. In a second or two he was twisting the heavy dial of the combination, his left ear pressed to the steel door.

WHEN Christine Palmer saw the odd "Professor" York depart from the crowd, and then saw Franklin Larraway step out to follow him, she was almost petrified with fear.

"Franklin!" she called.

But he didn't hear. Christine looked at the old bank building; "Professor" York had gone inside. Franklin walked directly toward it and, moving cautiously, himself stepped through the front door.

"O-o-oh!" breathed Christine, frantic now. She was gripping the back of a rustic chair that stood near her. Then someone took it to sit on, and Christine looked quickly around. Nobody else had noticed. Nobody saw what she saw. Nobody else knew that Franklin Larraway had gone into the bank, alone, to try to capture a desperate bandit and murderer! This crowd of college folk was too intent on food and laughter and conversation to notice the frenzy in her eyes.

She looked from them back to the street.

Franklin and Dick had a pistol hidden in the bank, she knew. She knew they slept there alternately every night now. If it really was the outlaw at last—and if Franklin could get to the gun first—oh! She felt her heart pounding. She wanted to scream for help. She knew Franklin was in danger—she knew it and was powerless!

And yet, she didn't know positively, of course. She had merely deduced it from the strange look in Franklin's eyes. Had he recognized the man Quait, posing as a professor? She was sure he had. Still she couldn't call out an alarm that would excite all Roselee's paying guests, perhaps unnecessarily. She didn't know what to do! "Franklin!" she muttered again, inadequately.

Then without further thinking about it, Christine herself darted through the hotel door and ran down the old ghost town street. She continued running until she paused for a deep breath at the bank door. She leaned to look in. She couldn't see anything. The vault was back behind the tellers' cages and half walls, in the dim rear of the building. A hall or passageway to one side led to it.

SHE stooped low to avoid being seen over the half wall, and edged around the front curve of it until she could see along the passageway. She glanced down it just in time to see Franklin suddenly pop up inside a cage, on the exact spot where she and Roselee had found Dick Bancroft that first night.

"Put up your hands!" Franklin ordered.

The command came in sure, hard tones. Somehow, thought Christine, here was a different Franklin. In the same instant she saw him raise a pistol, and saw the "professor" turn with lightning speed from the vault door.

Christine wanted to scream but she was momentarily frozen.

The man at the vault did not obey Franklin. He looked up and for a long second he stared at the younger man in combined surprise and fury. Then cursing, he dropped abruptly to the floor.

The sudden drop is an old trick, and often a good one. It is the quickest way to avoid the aim of a gun. It worked admirably now.

Franklin fired—BOOM! Inside the small back room the noise was like that of a cannon. But the bullet went harmlessly over Carl Quait and ricocheted off the steel vault door.

Christine still couldn't speak, nor scream, nor do anything but make a pitiful gesture of helplessness.

Quait had dropped, but in the same motion he had reached for his own pistol. It was the .44 he had stolen from the hotel clerk. He had never shot it, but he was accustomed to guns and he had no trouble flipping up the muzzle of this one and pulling its trigger as he crouched there on the floor. Its roar, too, rocked the building, even more than had Franklin's gun.

Then Christine could scream, and she did. For at that moment she saw Franklin suddenly topple down behind the tellers' cage.

Driving Tests At State Fair

The title of the Missouri State Highway Department's exhibit at the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia, August 19-26, will be "Safety in the World of Tomorrow." The theme of the exhibit is taken from "Trylon and Perisphere" of the New York World's Fair and the "Tower of the Sun" at the Golden Gate Exposition at San Francisco.

The highway department's landscaped exhibition area, located just north of the Agricultural Building at Sedalia, has many new landscape changes and exhibit novelties in addition to the feature exhibit.

An interesting feature of the exhibit this year will be the showing of the famous Aetna "Steerometer" and "Reactometer" which has been loaned to the Safety Bureau of the Missouri State Highway Department by the Safety Education Department of the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company, Hartford, Connecticut.

Drivers are urged to have tests made and secure from the attendant a record of their reaction and steering ability. Here the old question of who should drive the family auto can be settled without further argument. An electric recording shows speed of reaction in one of a series of tests.

All fair goers are invited to take the test.

Flood May Ease The Blockade

TIETSIN, A ug. 3.—(AP)—Flood waters of Hopeh Province streams appeared likely today to accomplish what British protests have failed to do—force Japanese to ease the blockade of Tientsin's British and French concessions.

The rising Hai river endangered two bridges upstream from the French concession. If they are carried away, Japanese will be forced to direct all trans-river traffic in the area over the international bridge, one end of which is in the concession itself.

Such a routing would require, for example, that traffic from the Japanese concession to the Italian concession go through the French area. Thus it was believed that if the flood waters rise further Japanese may be forced to lift the restrictions by which persons entering or leaving the French and British concessions since the blockade was imposed June 14 have been permitted to pass barriers.

The Chinese quarter of Tientsin was threatened by the rising water. Dikes appeared near collapse. The Hsi river, which flows into the Hai, broke its banks near Tientsin destroying dikes and carrying away hundreds of peasant homes. More than 50,000 Chinese were reported homeless.

The anti-British campaign continued unabated in North China. Four British missionaries had to leave Tienfu, in Shangung Province, because of anti-British agitation. Their departure for Tsingtao brought to more than 50 the total of British missionaries thus forced from North China stations.

Officials of the British hospital at Chowtsun, also in Shantung Province, were warned that patients must leave by Saturday, even those seriously ill.

Police Are Booed By Picketeers

DETROIT, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Police drove CIO United Automobile Workers Union members and sympathizers away from the area surrounding the strikebound General Motors Chevrolet plant today after what they said was a second attempt to stop factory automobile traffic by spreading tacks and broken glass on the streets.

The unionists retreated across the city limits line of suburban Hamtramck and booed the several hundred Detroit police.

Two men, Abraham Schwartz, 33, and Elery Flewelling, 33, were arrested. Patrolman Edsel O'Brien and Paul Clor said the two had driven a truck through area, scattering large roofing tacks on the pavement. The police pursued the pair to the UAW-CIO headquarters in Hamtramck. There they said they were menaced by a large crowd of men who threatened to take the prisoners away from them until 50 more policemen arrived.

Meanwhile George Googe, AFL national representative, charged that the UAW-CIO toolmakers' strike in 12 General Motors plants was "an effort to force building trades workers out of the American Federation of Labor into the CIO's new United Construction Workers Organizing Committee."

Googe issued an appeal to Detroit AFL unions to help the Building Trades Council keep its contracts by going through UAW-CIO picket lines to work on General Motors construction jobs.

Mix Adventure With Work On Movie Location Trip

'Naja' Is Queen Of Famous Barnett Herds

Trainer Thomas Burns and his long line of five-ton pachyderm performers, a part of the vast menagerie and extensive zoological department of the Barnett Brothers' three-ring circus.

All circus fans like elephants. In fact, nearly every one is attracted to the ponderous, plodding creatures because of their huge bulk, their patience to obey even the slightest command of their trainers and perhaps, chiefly, it is real fun to feed the elephants peanuts.

When the Barnett Circus comes to Sedalia for afternoon and night performances on Thursday, Aug. 3, one will see what is considered to be the finest group of performing elephants extant.

In the Barnett Brothers' Circus performance the elephants are featured in many new acts, three spectacular displays and, of course, tower in the circus menagerie like a company of gargantuan soldiers.

"Nadja" is the real queen of the herds and elephant men will tell you that all the others look to her for guidance. She is "boss" in every way — and a very intelligent one, they say. Her age is given as 77 yet she is in the prime of her elephantine life, for elephants live to be more than 100 years old.

In their native haunts elephants prowl about and play around at night. They sleep during the day. Like boys and girls they enjoy their own swimming hole; and they like to roll in a pool of mud, but at the first sight of dawn the accepted herd leader, usually a cow elephant, will trumpet a call to her charges and soon the herd will follow to the nearest jungle woods where they squat on all fours on a soft bed of black loam. Then, after almost covering their huge bodies with cool earth and leaves they rest quietly until dusk falls.

Circus men will tell you that as long as an elephant is well fed little or no trouble is experienced with them. But should they become real hungry their voracious appetite is appeased only by foraging for themselves and that means that the elephant is no respecter of persons in his quest for food.

Their daily circus fare consists of the best timothy hay, plenty of green vegetables, an occasional treat of sweetened mash, copious drafts of fresh, clear water and all the peanuts and other circus goodies visitors may have to offer.

'Boomps-A-Daisy' Talk Of Town

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—The "boomps-a-daisy" and the "castle rock and roll," which has one phase called "kicking the bucket," were the talk of the town today.

These two new dances which the Dancing Masters of America hope will supersede jitterbug antics in the nation's ballrooms were demonstrated yesterday at their convention.

Irene Castle, who devised and introduced the "Castle rock and roll," said it had the lilting quality of a polka — but its steps are not altogether gentle.

Its three phases are "banking the turn, side slip and kicking the bucket."

The "boomps-a-daisy" was received with consternation by lovers of sedate ballroom dancing.

In waltz time, the words go:

"Hands and knees and boomps-a-daisy. I like a bustle that bends."

As he yodels "boomps-a-daisy," the man backs up and bumps his partner's bustle.

The "boomps-a-daisy" came from England, which gave the world the "Lambeth walk" a year or so ago.

Derelicts, ships abandoned at sea, for a constant hazard to water travel. Every year, dozens of these wonderers are destroyed. but their numbers do not seem to decrease. Unlike icebergs, which follow a more or less charted course, abandoned ships are likely to appear anywhere at sea.

Placements Of 'Vets' Increase

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 3—The employment service division of the Unemployment Compensation Commission of Missouri placed 1,582 veterans in the first six months of 1939 as compared with 1,085 placements in the first half of 1938, an increase of 45.8 per cent, it was announced today by Ted Marks, veteran representative for Missouri.

Only those persons who served in the military forces of the United States, in time of war, are classified as veterans under the United States Employment Service Division definition.

During the first half of this year veterans were placed in 1,059 private and 523 public jobs. New applications of veterans made at state employment service offices in the first six months of 1939 were 2,979, a decrease of 29.3 per cent from the total of 4,212 filed during a similar period in 1938.

Emphasizing that the average of veterans today is beyond forty-five, Marks stated that the increase in veteran placements proved that there is definitely a place and an urgent need in the business world for men "past forty."

Work Starts On Memorial Soon

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3—(AP)—After 5½ years of planning, actual work on the $30,000,000 Jefferson Riverfront Memorial project is expected to start by the middle of next month.

Buildings in a 40-square-block area along the historic Mississippi river waterfront—the commercial district of steamboat days but now a virtual "ghost town"—have been acquired by the government and will be destroyed to make way for the gigantic memorial.

Although it has not been decided whether the old structures will be wrecked with WPA labor or by private wrecking contractors, John L. Nagle, superintendent of the National Park service in charge of the project, said today the work would get under way not later than Sept. 15.

Three-fourths of the cost of the memorial, to be dedicated to Thomas Jefferson and the winning of the west, is to be borne by the federal government. The balance was provided for in a $7,500,000 bond issue voted in 1935.

The park service has announced no definite plan of construction for the memorial.

Style Show At 4H Roundup

The two day achievement program of the 4-H clubs of the county, which began at Liberty park, Wednesday, will conclude this afternoon with the final awarding of honors to those who have excelled.

The boys and girls of the clubs have an opportunity during these days to show what they have learned, to display their handiwork and skill in competition with others in other parts of the county, and to view the displays in comparison with each other.

A feature of this afternoon's program is the style show, with the girls modeling garments of their own selection and making.

The displays of canned goods, sewing, table arrangement, leaf printing, care of poultry and farm animals, how to arrange home furnishings, and other practical things have brought commendation from the visitors, and certainly credit to the young people themselves.

The funeral services for Lewis Peter Andrews, president and manager of the Sedalia Water Co., who passed away at his home, 710 West Seventh street, Wednesday afternoon, will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Broadway Presbyterian church.

The Reverend Ralph A. Waggoner, pastor of the church, will officiate.

Pall bearers will be the following friends: Honorary, J. T. Montgomery, J. A. Lamy, Dr. E. F. Yancey, Dr. J. E. Cannaday, J. S. Brenneman, George Wilkerson, W. M. Johns, W. H. Cloney. Active, William Courtney, T. W. Cloney, II, I. H. Reed, Charles Van Dyne, L. W. Duley, E. H. McLaughlin.

Mrs. Charles L. Meyers, is in charge of the music for the service. A quartet composed of Mrs. Percy Metcalf, Mrs. H. C. Johnson, James Obermiller and William Jackson, will sing "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Abide With Me." Mrs. Meyers will accompany at the organ.

Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

The Sedalia Lodge B. P. O. Elks No. 125 will have charge of the services at the cemetery.

The body will be taken from the McLaughlin chapel to the family home this afternoon and will remain there until time for the funeral services.

Basil L. Smith

Basil L. Smith, a brother-in-law of Dr. J. D. Mitchell, North Kansas City, died unexpectedly Wednesday at his home in Philadelphia. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Smith, formerly connected with the Kansas City Star, was the first newspaper man in the country to use indexed classified advertising. He had become an expert on classified newspaper advertising and had made a modest fortune out of the Basil L. Smith System, Inc., a plan to promote the indexing and classification of want ads.

Mrs. Smith, who has been dead for a number of years, was Miss Julia Mitchell. Surviving are two children, Julian M. Smith, of Philadelphia and Mrs. John Shaw, Winnwood, Pa.

Rush Guardsmen To Scene Of Gun Fights

Big Thompson water diversion and irrigation project.

After the clash between the Denver caravan and "back to work" forces south of Kremmling, the union sympathizers were searched for weapons and ordered to return to Denver—a three-hour trip over Berthoud Pass, crossing the Continental Divide.

Riflemen Along Street

Riflemen were stationed along Kremmling's main street to see the caravan did not halt.

The bridge dynamiting, one union picket said, was a move by the "back to work" faction to stop the movement of union sympathizers north from Dillon. Between 500 and 700 union sympathizers and strikers were concentrated at the junction of the Dillon-Kremmling road and the road leading three miles to the dam site.

Al Marlow, truck foreman for the Warner Company, said some union men established a picket line 400 to 500 yards from the project boundary.

James A. Brownlow, secretary of the Colorado State Federation of Labor, said in Denver the "strike is still on at the Green Mountain Dam. Our men merely are trying to establish picket lines.

"We cannot stop any union man who wants to help a fellow craftsman from participating in a strike, but there were no orders from the Federation to send men to the strike front."

A CIO Tunnel Workers' union announced a one-day protest "holiday" on a Denver municipal water project at Idaho Springs, Colo., declaring "we stand shoulder to shoulder with the A. F. of L. victims of officially condoned brutality and terror."

Although P. W. Chappell, federal mediator, has consulted with both sides in the dispute, there have been no direct negotiations.

The Colorado Industrial Commission declined to take jurisdiction as long as the men were on strike, holding a requirement for 30-day notice of a strike was not fulfilled. The union contended the requirement was invalid.

Wages on the project, sponsored by the northern Colorado conservancy district—composed of northern Colorado irrigators—were pre-determined by the department of labor and are not an issue in the strike.

Last March, C. I. O. Tunnel Workers called a strike at the Green Mountain project. They returned to work pending an industrial commission hearing. After the hearing, the commission ordered working conditions improved at the project and certain changes in workers' qualifications.

Before last night's hostilities, the commission announced that because men again were at work on the project, it would hear union grievances Monday.

May Bring Shutdown

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—J. R. Steelman, director of the federal conciliation service, indicated today he may ask the reclamation bureau to shut down Green Mountain, Colo., dam construction until mediation conferences can be held in an effort to settle the strike there.

"Regardless of what has already happened or who has been in the wrong up to now," he said, "the place to settle labor disputes is around the conference table."

P. W. Chappell, of the conciliation service, has been in Denver for several days. It was suggested here that he is awaiting the arrival there of Roy Warner, head of the Warner Construction Company of Chicago, the contractor.

Find No Trace Of Ship After Distress Calls

to reach the last position reported was the fruit steamer Ceiba. Her master radioed that he found no sign of a ship in distress but was continuing the search in the Bahama Islands.

Early today the sender of the SOS calls said the crew had taken to lifeboats and the craft was sinking 90 miles southwest of Miami.

"No lives were lost except the second mate who is the regular wireless operator," he reported in what he said was a final message.

This report, at 5 A. M., said "abandoning ship now."

It gave no further clue to the coast guard and commercial radio operators who had tried for hours to make some coherence out of the fantastic series of calls.

One of the messages reported 38 persons, one a woman, "went down." The sender ended this with the words, "okay, big boy."

After transmitting in English for hours, the operator told Radiomarine at Lake Worth, Fla., "Don't speak English."

"Eighteen days out of Calcutta and 40 miles south of Hialeah, Fla., he laboriously tapped out in another message.

Reports Craft Sinking

"Will sink in two hours," he said near the end of his long period on the air. "Ten inches of water in my room."

Earlier he had told how the regular operator had both legs broken in what apparently was an explosion. He sent his first SOS shortly after 10 P. M.

The coast guard cutter Pandora left from Key West for the last position given by the operator, 24:30 north and 79:20 west. A coast guard plane from the Miami base flew over the position this morning but found no sign of the distressed ship.

The spot where the ship was finally reported sinking was the fourth position given by the operator.

Even the identity of the ship was a mystery.

The operator gave the name as the Dunkwa, which is the name of a British oil tanker out of Liverpool, but Lloyd's at London reported the Dunkwa was in Rotterdam.

Coast guard officials were frankly perplexed by the incoherent nature of some of the messages and the number of positions given, but said the confusion possibly was due to the fact the sender was inexperienced and working under adverse conditions.

One message received at Port Arthur, Tex., gave the sinking vessel's latitude and longitude as being at a point off the Georgia-Florida coast in the Atlantic 35 miles southwest of Savannah. A cutter had been headed for that point before the later message was sent.

Hatch To Try To Extend Law

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—Senator Hatch (D-NM), smiling because President Roosevelt signed his bill to curtail political activities of federal employes, said today he would try during the next congressional session to extend the law to state workers.

Hatch is studying a suggestion advanced by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday that congress might have the power to prevent "pernicious political activities" by state and local employes who engage actively in federal election campaigns.

The New Mexico senator, who brought the measure over several congressional hurdles before it was approved, said that congress certainly can enact legislation to forbid political activity by state workers who are paid in part from federal funds. These employes include many of those working for state road and unemployment compensation departments.

Senator Minton (D-Ind), on the other hand, said there would be "substantial opposition" to extending the law to state employes.

Among other things, the Hatch measure forbids all federal employes except members of congress and policy-making officials from participating in national election campaigns. It also bans intimidation of voters, solicitation or acceptance of political contributions from persons on relief and promises of jobs in payment for votes.

File Adoption Petition

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anderson, 208 North Washington, in a petition filed in the circuit court, ask for the adoption of Charles Lester Simpson, their grandchild, born May 19, 1926, whom the petition states they have reared, clothed, educated and supported.

Gambling Ship Skipper Gives Up

Palatial gambling ship, Rex, with 600 patrons aboard, stopped roulette wheels and gaming devices as Tony Cornero, above, captain and prohibition era rum runner, accepted restraining order, marking surrender to navy of 250 law officers who had held boat at bay four miles out in Pacific off California coast. For many hours Cornero strode deck, hurling defiance at authorities.

aside for legal expenses. Of the latter amount, approximately 11 per cent eventually was distributed among the companies after the trustees, Street and Robert J. Folonie, reported to the court it was not needed for expenses.

Gustavus Remak, Jr., president of the Pennsylvania firm, testified that when the 11 per cent payment was made, in March, 1936, his firm was asked to contribute 5 per cent of it toward Street's expense fund. The contribution amounted to $1,876.68.

"When we got the 50 per cent settlement we didn't expect any more and I was naturally pleased when we got the 11 per cent because we hadn't expected it."

Haid told him the 5 per cent contribution was for "legal expenses," Rodgers testified. He added:

"My recollection now is that we would get an accounting since this was paid on a percentage basis and the contribution might be too much or too little."

He said he had not known that 30 per cent of the entire amount involved in the litigation was set aside for legal expenses. Asked why, he replied that he received so many bulletins over the years reporting on the progress of the case that "we got tired of reading them and just skimmed over them lightly."

Missouri Girl Wins Award

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—Hilda Scott, 16, Columbia, Mo., high school senior, was announced today as the winner of the annual American youth forum award for her essay "What I Owe America and What America Owes Me."

She receives $1,000 and a week's stay in New York as guest of the American magazine that sponsors the forum. Entries were submitted by 317,161 high school students.

Second prize of $500 was won by James Mertens, 17, of St. Edward's Seminary, Seattle, Wash., and third prize of $100 by Frances Goudy, 17, of Rising Sun high school, Rising Sun, Ohio.

Housing Bill Killed For This Congress Session

would adjourn Saturday night "but I don't make that prediction — yet."

"It's all conjecture to know what is going to happen in the next 48 hours," he added.

Meanwhile it was disclosed at the white house that in anticipation of final congressional action on several hundred bills, President Roosevelt had asked interested government agencies to report to him on the measures in advance.

Stephen Early, press secretary, said the president had asked him to instruct all agencies to study bills "already in the mill"—244 were passed by the house in one day this week — and report on them immediately.

The president's usual procedure is to ask a report on a bill after it has cleared congress and is ready for his signature or veto.

Deadlock On Social Security

Senate leaders of the deadlocked conference on social security amendments met for an hour but said afterwards they had made no progress toward reconciling differences in the legislation as approved by the senate and the house.

Should this bill fail of passage it would mean that, barring action in a special session, old age insurance payments could not be started in January 1940 as the bill provides, and that social security tax revision could not be effected this year.

Senator Nye (R-ND), one of those who listened to Wallace's plea, said there was a good possibility the committee would put the commodity credit funds back into the bill.

Wallace argued that if the price-supporting loans of the commodity corporation were not continued the price of corn might 'drop to 25 cents a bushel or less" and other commodity prices might sag.

Rep. Rogers, another who appeared before the committee, said she did so at the request of Secretary Perkins who wants $2,000,000 instead of half that amount appropriated for the wage-hour administration to build up its enforcement staff. The house approved $1,000,000.

Jerome Frank, chairman of the securities commission, sought restoration of $102,000 to finance regulation of over-the-counter markets, complete an investigation of investment trusts and maintain representatives of the SEC in London.

Spokesmen for the federal housing administration protested that the house had denied authority to spend $500,000 of the FHA income for administrative expenses, resulting from additional activities ordered by congress. They asked that this be remedied.

Altogether, the house cut the deficiency bill $161,700,000 below the estimates of the white house budget bureau.

Around the $119,000,000 farm item, to replenish the cash of the commodity credit corporation, centered the possibility that congress would be carried over into another week. Senate approval of the fund when the deficiency bill is taken up tomorrow, would bring on another battle with the anti-New Dealers in the house.

Secretary Wallace said yesterday that unless the money is provided, corn prices would drop to 1932 levels, wheat would go down, and prices of cotton, dairy products, wool and rye would be seriously affected.

A third row simmered in the house. Amendments to revise the wage-hour law can be called up for debate, but leaders said no decision had been reached on whether to include them in the pre-adjournment schedule. One set of the proposed changes, the president has said, would doom 2,000,000 of the country's lowest paid workers to unconscionably low wages.

The decision to give the housing bill a test was announced by Rep. Rayburn of Texas, the Democratic leader, just as the house quit last night. He said later that despite the 193 to 166 defeat of the big lending measure, "the city fellows" wanted the housing vote.

Other sources added that the purpose of the housing advocates was to fix responsibility for the legislation's defeat, just as Mr. Roosevelt said was done when the house voted against considering the lending bill.

Bridges Admits Giving Address

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3—(AP)—Statement that Communists drafted the policy for the 1934 maritime and general strike in San Francisco was read into the record of Harry Bridges' deportation hearing today, but the CIO labor leader declared the unions, themselves, drafted the strike strategy.

Excerpts from a magazine, the "Communist," were read by Thomas B. Shoemaker, chief of the government's counsel, in efforts to deport Bridges to Australia, on the ground he is a Communist and that the party advocates violent overthrow of the government.

The magazine article, by Sam D'Arcy, former San Francisco Communist leader, declared the Communist party had drafted the policy of encouraging workers to "forget the stricture of legality" and place their program in the hands of a strike committee.

Bridges admitted he had addressed a meeting in Madison Square Garden in 1936, which government witnesses termed a Communist party session.

Bridges said the meeting was sponsored by striking seamen, and he had no hesitancy in speaking, although he had been ordered not to do so by his international president. Bridges asserted he lost his job as international organizer of the International Longshoremen's association because he disregarded his superior's orders.

Priest Is Shot By Accident

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 3—Critically injured by another priest in a shooting gallery accident, the Rev. George W. King clung doggedly to life today, winked to a friend and promised "we'll make it all right."

Father King, 38, and the Rev. John J. Murphy, close friends, were alternating shots with .22 pistols at an amusement park. Father Murphy's gun clicked, apparently empty. As he put it down it discharged.

The bullet entered Father King's back only an inch from the spinal cord. It paralyzed his lower legs. Hospital attendants feared his lung was punctured also.

Father Murphy sped him to a hospital.

"Father King is my best friend," he said. "His loss is unthinkable. Pray God I have not mortally wounded him."

Police exonerated Father Murphy and listed the shooting as an accident.

Father Murphy is superintendent of parochial schools of the Kansas City diocese. Father King is assistant at the cathedral and was secretary to the late Bishop Thomas F. Lillis.

Pinching Down On Petitions

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 3—(AP)—City Clerk Charles W. Regan refused today a request from recall forces for 8,000 petitions to be used in their drive to oust Mayor Bryce B. Smith.

He said he believed 1,800 blank forms would be sufficient for the campaign.

"That's more than you need," Regan said. "However, if you find as you go along you need more, you come in and we'll go over it, and I'll allow you a reasonable number."

The pinching down by Regan was an unexpected technical obstruction in the move against the mayor and six councilmen. Regan contended the charter provides the total signatures on petitions must equal only 20 per cent of the number of votes for mayor in the last election, and 1,800 blanks would provide space for 45,000 signatures some 5,000 more than necessary.

Charge Attempt At Extortion

CHICAGO, Aug. 3—(AP)—Miss Wanda Ruth Erickson, 29, was charged in a federal warrant today with attempting to extort $50,000 from Fred Harvey, a department store employe whom she had confused with the late Fred Harvey, founder of a chain of railroad restaurants.

United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker was told by federal agents she had confessed sending three threatening letters to Harvey because she had "seen his name on a lot of signs and figured he had a lot of money."

Harvey was told in the letter he would be "shot down in the street unless he placed the money in a sack in his back yard. When several dummy sacks were left untouched, federal agents traced the letters to Miss Erickson, a domestic servant, through the stationery. They found her in a Chicago jail, charged with stealing a typewriter.

"Alfalfa Bill" To Fight On Third Term

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 3—(AP)—William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, vitriolic former governor of Oklahoma, declared today he would tour the country campaigning against a third term for President Roosevelt "or any other New Deal crown prince."

Murray said he would urge the Democrats to nominate either Vice President Garner or Sen. Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri.

Browns Lose Another To Senators, 2-1

Dutch Leonard Holds St. Louis To Four Hits For 11th Win

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Washington made it two straight over St. Louis Wednesday as Dutch Leonard pitched a 4-hit game to win, 2 to 1.

It was the big knuckle-baller's eleventh victory and he would have had a shut-out except for his own miscues in the seventh.

Leonard walked Joe Grace after one was out. He retired the next batter but when John Berardino tapped a roller down the third base line, Leonard picked up the ball and, trying for a play at first, heaved it into right field, Grace scoring.

The Senators scored in the fifth when George Case tripled and tallied on Lewis' fly. They countered again in the seventh on Tony Giuliani's double and Case's sacrifice.

It was the ill luck of Rookie Jack Kramer to meet up with the Senators on a day when Leonard was at his best. Kramer contributed a performance that ordinarily would have been a winning one, pitching nine-hit ball without issuing a walk.

Starting with George McQuinn's triple in the sixth, the Browns collected one hit in each of the last four innings and had both the tying and winning runs on base in the ninth before Leonard quelled their rally. The other hits were by Don Heffner, Berardino and Grace.

The Brownies muffed scoring chances in the first and third innings.

Medwick Riled Over Yanking

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A temperamental outburst by Joe Medwick, when he was removed from the Cardinal lineup for the third straight time, gave support last night to reports the outfielder was at odds with Manager Ray Blades.

It was the ninth inning Tuesday, there was a runner on first, two men were out, and the Cardinals were leading Boston, 4 to 3. The count on Tony Cuccinello, a long hitter, was two and one.

Suddenly time was called and Lynn King, a speedy youngster, dashed out into left field to replace Medwick.

Medwick promptly threw his glove high into the air, stalked belligerently after it and kicked it viciously before picking it up. He left the field by a wagon gate near the left field line just as Cuccinello ended the game by striking out.

The fiery display by the outfielder indicated there was substance to the shadows in the repeated talk that he was not satisfied and would be traded. Medwick, the National league's "most valuable player" in 1937, has been the Cardinals' regular left fielder since 1932.

Blades, the kind of a manager who spares no one's feelings to win, said he took Medwick out of the game because he considered King a better defensive outfielder.

Giants Take Another From Redlegs, 12-2

Rookie Lohrman Takes Third Game From Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The New York Giants humbled Cincinnati's National league leaders again Wednesday, 12 to 2, in the five-hit pitching of young Bill Lohrman, who also had beaten the Reds in his last two starts against them.

Besides subduing the rampant Reds with his hurling, Lohrman participated in the 17-hit attack on three opposing pitchers with a double and two singles, batting in four runs.

The victory lifted the Giants into fifth place with a budding winning streak of four games after losing 11 of their previous 12 contests.

Pitchers Keep Reds Far Ahead

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 3—(AP)—It's only a two-game losing streak so far, the Reds are still 10½ games in front, and the Giants always have been hard to convince, but already the strident cry is rising, "Whatsa matter with the Reds?"

The question seems a little previous, but that's the Cincinnati fan for you. Yet if he really wants to know, here is one suggestion:

The team has played 92 games winning 60 for a percentage of .652. Of these 92 games, two pitchers have been responsible for 43, and their combined efforts have won 32 and lost combined efforts have won 32 and lost only 11 for a .744 percentage.

These two pitchers have won 53½ per cent of the Reds' victories to date. They are responsible for less than a third of the team's defeats.

Their names are Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters and Bucky is to pitch again today in an effort to salvage the third game of the Giant series and to hang up his own 19th victory.

Derringer has been pitching one day; the next two Lee Grissom, Whitey Moore, Johnny Vander Meer or Gene Thompson, either singly or in relays; then Bucky and the circle starts again.

Before Bucky and Paul start demanding time and a half for overtime, Thompson may turn out to be the steady third man.

Although the Giants beat him yesterday, the big fellow has control, speed, enough stuff and a cool disposition. He has won five and lost two.

The other five pitchers look like world beaters occasionally. Vandy leads the team in strikeouts with a total of 80, but also in walks with 89, more than Derringer's 15 and Walters 58 together. He has won five and lost eight.

Donald Fails To Get 13th Straight Win

Detroit Tigers Batter Yankees To Win By 7-2 Score

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Disaster caught up with Rookie Atley Donald Wednesday, handing him his first defeat instead of his 13th victory as the bloodthirsty Detroit Tigers stopped the Yankees again, 7 to 2.

Donald was batted out of the box in Detroit recently but escaped responsibility for the loss. Today the Tigers tore into his offerings for seven hits and six runs before bringing about his removal for a pinchhitter in the fifth.

Detroit's heavy artillery was supported by the seven-hit pitching of Schoolboy Rowe, who showed flashes of his finest form. He was ahead of nearly every batter and struck out three in the seventh inning.

The "13" jinx also snared Joe DiMaggio, who went hitless after a 12-game streak. The Yankees' first run was Bill Dickey's 16th homer in the second.

Net Teams Turn Surprise

SOUTHHAMPTON, N. ., Aug. 3—(AP)—The national and Davis cup doubles situations were the big talking points at the 49th annual Meadow club invitation tournament today as a result of the surprises turned in by a pair of "pick-up" teams which didn't figure to go anywhere.

Gene Mako, who has been at somewhat loose ends as a doubles player since partner Don Budge turned pro, and Gardner Mulloy, the Miami ace, made up one of the pairs. Norman Bickel, a Chicago university graduate, and Marvin Wachman, a Northwestern alumnus, were the other duo.

Everyone thought these two teams lacked the necessary experience as partners. But yesterday they won two matches each to waltz into the quarter-finals.

And, since the national doubles are coming up at Brookline in two weeks, and the Davis cup just a short time after that, it's going to be mighty hard to laugh off these fellows. All four have ambitions toward both the forthcoming competitions.

Although Mako and Mulloy are the more illustrious in net circles, the Bickel-Wachman team was the most impressive today. The luck of the crew threw them against the top-ranking team, Joe Hunt and Sidney Wood, in the first round, and they trounced this highly regarded pair 3-6, 6-3, 6-2. Then they went on to whip Ladislav Hecht of Czechoslovakia and the veteran J. Gilbert Hall.

A climax will be provided in the singles today, when Bobby Riggs meets Joe Hunt in a quarter-final match. A bitter rivalry exists between the two.

Has Something On Fast Ball

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—(AP)—Freddie Hutchinson, the high-priced kid from the coast, is about ready now to show the skeptics a thing or two about pitching, says Manager Del Baker o fthe Detroit Tigers.

Del recently brought his $80,000 beauty back from Toledo, where he had been farmed out since early in May, and Freddie already has shown the Bengals' boss enough to convince him he is going to be a great pitcher.

"He's on his way now," says Del. "All that publicity was what ruined him in the spring. Freddie wouldn't let on that it was bothering him, but he was pressing just the same. He's still walking a few, but he's not wild any more.

"No, his fast ball still isn't anything to curl a batter's whiskers, but there's something on it and no mistake. The hitters aren't getting hold of him solidly. I'm beginning to understand how he won those 25 games for Seattle last year."

Del is happy about his Tigers in general, even though they're still in fifth place. They're getting over their injuries and beginning to click. Hank Greenberg is looking like his old hard hitting self. Rudy York's bunged-up hands are healing. The club is in high spirits.

"We'll finish ahead of both Cleveland and Chicago, now that we've started," said Baker, confidently.

Red Sox Split Doubleheader With Indians

Win Nightcap, 5-4, After Losing First Game By 8-2 Score

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox kept alive their flickering penant hopes Wednesday by pushing across two runs in the eighth for a 5-4 victory over Cleveland in the nightcap of a doubleheader, after Boston lost the first game, 8 to 2.

The Sox picked up half a game on the league-leading New York Yankees, whom they now follow by seven and a half games.

The Sox trailed 4-1 going into the last of the eighth of the second game, but closed in on the Indians when singles by Cronin, Vosmik and Lou Finney and a walk to Williams produced two runs.

New York Paper Reminisces About Late Sedalia Actress

A sketched likeness of the late Lucille McVey of Sedalia, appeared in an illustrated feature, headed "25 Years Ago," in the New York Sun of Tuesday, July 25, and the accompanying lines told of her marriage on that date, a quarter of a century ago, to Sidney Drew, moving picture comedian.

Miss McVey, a widely known stage and screen actress of the World war period, was the daughter of the late Charles and Lucy McVey, who lived at 2001 East Broadway. The Misses Margaret, Helen and Hortense Bapple and their brother, Brooks Bapple, double cousins of Miss McVey, now live at 1911 East Broadway, the original McVey home.

Their mother, Mrs. Rebecca McVey Bapple and Charles McVey, father of the actress, were brother and sister, and their late father, James Bapple, was a brother of Miss Lucy Bapple, who became the wife of Charles McVey.

Following her graduation from high school here, Miss McVey attended college in Nebraska, and later went to London, where she presented drawing room programs. Returning to this country she acted in the silent motion pictures.

After her marriage to Sidney Drew she appeared on the stage with him, becoming one of the popular legitimate theatre actresses of her day. The productions in which she and her husband starred were humorous plays with themes typifying everyday life, her cousins recall. As a young girl she was featured here on many club and church programs as a dramatic reader.

Mrs. Drew died in 1926 in California, several years after the death of her husband, who was a brother of John Drew, famous leading man. The Drew brothers were uncles of Ethel, John and Lionel Barrymore of contemporary stage and screen fame.

Mrs. Drew's brother, Lloyd McVey, is a resident of Herrington, Kas., and another brother, Hartley, and a sister, Miss Rose McVey, live in Hollywood, although neither is connected with pictures.

Society and Clubs

Miss Lorraine Levy, daughter of Ellis Levy, of Beverly Hills, Calif., whose marriage to Dr. S. Edward Sulkin, of St. Louis, will take place Monday, invited a number of her friends to her home, 715 West Broadway Wednesday night, to meet her house guest, Miss Claire Agatstein, of St. Louis, and to give them an opportunity of seeing her trousseau.

Miss Levy was assisted in entertaining by her grandmother, Mrs. Sylvain Kahn. White predominated in the home decorations, white candles, white flowers, and individual cakes, served with ice cream, were iced in white, and on each was a small white lighted candle.

The small napkins used had the names "Lorraine and Eddie" on the corner.

After the guests had been shown the lovely trousseau of the bride-to-be, the remainder of the evening was spent in playing bingo and charades.

Awards went to Mrs. Wm. Burton, Miss Vivian Valkenburg and Mrs. Fred Lange.

Miss Levy's guests were, Miss Agatstein, Mrs. Louis Freudenthal, of Las Cruces, N. M., formerly Miss Carman Kahn of this city, Miss Joan Heidbreder, Miss Mary McElroy, Miss Jane Collins, Miss Vivian Valkenberg, Miss Dorothy Swope, Miss Helen Rose Shaffer, Mrs. Gene Merry, Mrs. Wm. Burton, Miss Mary Ross Hoffman, Mrs. Fred Lange, Miss Ruth Chasnoff, Miss Ruby Kanter, Miss Dorothy Cantor, Miss Jane Laupheimer, Miss Ruth Aleskin, Miss Jeanne Ott, Mrs. Fred Van Arsdale, Mrs. Charles Goodknight, Miss Dorothy Jane Kroencke, Miss Dee Hausam, Miss Helen Doris Scotten.

Miss Helen Rose Shaffer and sister, Mrs. Gene Merry were hostesses at a pre-nuptial luncheon at Hotel Bothwell Wednesday noon, complimenting Miss Levy.

The table was decorated with a number of marine gloves, filled with apricot gladioli and tube roses, and favors and place cards were of matching colors and designs.

Seated at the table were the hostesses, Miss Levy, her house guest Miss Claire Agatstein, of St. Louis, Mrs. Louis Freudenthal, of Las Cruces, N. M., Misses Ruth Chasnoff, Mary Ross Hoffman, Mary McElroy, Mrs. Al Fabry and Mrs. Fred Lange.

The honoree was presented with a number of pieces of linen at the close of the luncheon, and the guests were taken to the Liberty theatre, where the remainder of the afternoon was spent.

Church Events

The Truth Seekers class of the First M. E. church will meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Mrs. C. F. Ernest, 416 West Seventh street, Mrs. T. M. Garrett will be assisting hostess.

Pretty, Adjustable Smock For Smart Mothers-To-Be

By CAROL DAY

Comfortable, becoming and youthful, this smock-skirt is infinitely better than the old-type maternity dresses. And since several blouses and two or three skirts may so easily and inexpensively be made with this design, Pattern 8515, you can have a variety, and not grow tired of your clothes.

This special version, with pleated smock that's finished with a tailored collar and buted across the back, is sufficiently dressy so that you can make it up in flat crepe, silk print or sharkskin, for afternoons, as well as in gingham, linen or shantung for house wear. The skirt, with ample wrap-around, is adjustable so that you can let it out as you go along.

Pattern 8515 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 5¾ yards of 39-inch material, with short - sleeved smock and skirt; 3⅝ yards for long-sleeved smock; 3⅛ yards for skirt alone.

For a PATTERN of this attractive model send 15c in COIN, your name, address, style, number and size to the Democrat-Capital. Today's Pattern Bureau, 211 W. Wacher Drive, Chicago, Ill.

Newspapers Have Leading Role In The Advertising Of Kellogg's Corn Flakes

Large Space Advertisements Of The Reminder Type Are Now Being Seen Regularly

For years a consistent user of newspaper space to promote the sale of its products, the Kellogg company of Battle Creek is releasing during the summer months of 1939 one of the most extensive newspaper campaigns in the history of Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

Large space advertisements of the "reminder" type, urging people to "buy Kellog's Corn Flakes today," are appearing regularly during the warm weather cereal season on the food pages of more than five hundred daily newspapers in the United States.

Large Advertisers

Since the beginning of the summer cereal season, the Democrat and Capital has carried Kellogg's Corn Flakes advertising and the schedule will continue throughout the season.

The majority of these advertisements, in illustration and text, suggest that Kellogg's Corn Flakes be eaten with fresh, frozen or canned fruit, berries, etc.

In addition to newspaper advertising, full-color advertisements on Kellogg's Corn Flakes are also appearing in leading national magazines and Sunday supplements.

Low Temperature Prevents Mold

The housewife who likes to serve a variety of breads at each meal finds herself faced with rapid bread spoilage when warm, damp weather arrives. If bread is wrapped in fresh waxed paper and stored in the refrigerator instead of the bread-box, she will find that the loaf should stay fresh and unspoiled several days longer.

Keep Light Bulbs Clean

For lighting economy keep electric bulbs clean. Wash with soap and water, but never immerse the metal screw neck for when the bulb is replaced in the socket, a short circuit may result.

Your Doctor Recommends light meat diet for summer months.

Cornish Fry
(Serves 4 to 6)

Three potatoes, 2 white turnips, 2 onions, 1-4 cup butter or bacon fat, seasoning.

Peel and slice vegetables. Melt butter in skillet. When hot, add sliced vegetables. Season with salt and pepper. Brown for about 7 minutes, turning carefully. Then cover and steam until tender.

Food and Market Basket Page

Lemon Chiffon Cake

One envelope plain unflavored gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 sponge cake layer baked in spring form pan.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Beat egg yolks and add ½ cup of sugar, lemon juice and salt. Cook in top of double boiler until consistency of custard, stirring constantly. Add softened gelatin to hot custard and stir until dissolved. Add grated lemon rind and cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in egg whites beaten stiff to which remaining ¼ cup sugar has been added.

Pour on top of cool sponge cake layer in spring form pan to form a second layer. Chill. Just before serving, run a thin knife around edge of pan to free cake. Remove side of pan and frost cake with whipped cream.

Gravity is so great on the sun that an ordinary man would weigh two tons there.

Sponge Cake Squares

(Makes two 8 by 8 by 2-inch pans)

One cup sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon combination baking powder, 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 6 tablespoons hot milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift again together three times. Beat eggs until very thick and light and nearly white (about 10 minutes). Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add lemon juice. Fold in flour, a small amount at a time. Add milk, mixing quickly until batter is smooth.

Bake in two 8x8x2-inch pans in moderate oven (350 degrees F) for 25 minutes, or until done. Cut in squares and top with apricot or orange icing.

Apricot Icing

(2 1-4 cups)

One egg white unbeaten, 3-4 cup cooked apricots drained, 1-2 cup apricot juice, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 1-2 cups confectioner's sugar.

Beat egg white with rotary beater until frothy. Add apricots, apricot juice, and lemon juice, and continue beating until blended. Add sugar gradually, beating vigorously until thick and fluffy.

Orange Icing

Two cups confectioner's sugar sifted, dash of salt, 3-4 teaspoon grated orange rind, 3 tablespoons orange juice and pulp, about 2 teaspoons lemon juice.

Add sugar, salt, and orange rind to fruit, mixing well. Then add lemon juice until of consistency to spread thinly on cake.

Lifebuoy "Beat-The-Heat" Activity At Local Stores

A hot weather tip on how to beat the heat—especially during these torrid days—is mighty welcome news, indeed. The tip comes from the makers of Lifebuoy Health Soap, and will be of particular interest to men and women, who wish to retain their personal freshness and poise, even in the hottest weather. This popular bath soap, with its exclusive purifying ingredients, stops "B.O.," when used in the daily bath . . . not only assures personal freshness, but is pleasant and delightfully refreshing these hot days. The makers of Lifebuoy are getting their timely message over to the men and women of this section, in the form of a "Beat-the-Heat" campaign, which hits out from display posters, pennants and cards, placed in windows and interiors of local stores. The many dealers who are sponsoring the "Beat-the-Heat" program, are offering this ideal hot weather soap at attractive prices. They report that housewives have been stocking up on it in large quantities, while these special prices are in effect, to help their families "beat the heat" during the mid-summer weather.

Doctors Have Name, Erythema Solare For Severe Sunburn, but Don't Worry

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

As with every other disease, the doctors have coined a special name for ordinary sunburn. It is known as erythema solare, which merely means that it is an inflammation caused by the sun. The same term can, of course, be used to apply to an inflammation of the skin caused by ultraviolet rays from other sources.

The inflammation that develops varies from a slight flush to the severe burn that results in blistering and loss of skin. Immediately after burning there may be a sensation of heat which is followed in a few days or a week by itching and by peeling of the skin. Usually if the person protects the skin and avoids further sunburn, healing occurs promptly. Sunburns seldom produce scars unless there is a secondary infection of the damaged area.

If the sunburned area is very extensive, the effects of absorption of the material that has been damaged may be shown by dizziness, headache, fever, vomiting and other symptoms of a constitutional disturbance.

Most people have at one time or another suffered the effects of sunburn and know just about what to do. The application of ordinary cold cream or any similar medication will stop the sensation of burning and dryness that results from the exposure of nerve endings. In the very severe cases it is necessary, however, to apply treatment exactly as if the surface of the body were burned by any other burning agent.

The dangers from sunlight are chiefly the effects of the ultraviolet rays. These are the short rays rather than the longer heat rays.

When doctors use sunlight in the treatment of disease as, for example, for tuberculosis, they carefully regulate the dosage of the rays that are given and also gradually accustom the person concerned to the sunlight. It is customary to apply the sunbath in a succession of short periods, particularly at the beginning, because these brief and repeated exposures of the sun enable us to escape any inflammation of the skin and the subsequent blisters, burning and nervous reactions which result in loss of sleep.

Certain skins are much more delicate than are others. Blonds, particularly with thin skins, react so quickly that even a short exposure may bring about a reaction to heat and even the symptoms of sunstroke. The skin of the infant is much more delicate than that of the adult and will burn and become inflammed much more promptly.

A person of intelligence can determine for himself how much sunlight he ought to have, but the infant is certainly not able to settle such a question for itself.

• Mind Your Manners

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. What is the limit to the number of times that a man can cut in on the same girl at a dance?
2. Is it all right for the man to go first when getting into a boat with a girl?
3. In a large crowd — as at a ball park — should a man precede or follow the woman he is accompanying?
4. Should a person having a coughing spell ask to be excused from the table?
5. If you don't know exactly what a dish on the menu is, may you ask the waiter?

What would you say if—

Your hostess says, "This is Miss Smith." Would you say—

(a) How do you do?
(b) How do you do, Miss Smith?
(c) Glad to know you?

Answers

1. There is no limit, though he must not cut back on the man who takes her from him.
2. Yes, so that he can help the girl.
3. Precede, so that he can make way for her.
4. Yes.
5. Certainly.

Best "What Would You Say" solution — either (a) or (b).

• Stamp News

NO philatelic handling will be given mails dispatched on British Imperial Airways' first eastbound trans-Atlantic flight, New York postal officials have announced. The return flight is scheduled to leave New York Aug. 9, following inauguration of service by the westbound flight on Aug. 5.

Special Canadian cachets were to be applied to all covers received by the district director of postal services at Montreal by Aug. 5. Canadian postage, at 30 cents per half ounce for the trans-Atlantic service, is required.

Two new additions to the philatelist's art collection are Fragonard's painting "La Lettre," reproduced on a new French semi-postal and Albrecht Durer's "A Woman of Venice," which appears on a new German stamp, surtaxed for Hitler's cultural fund.

Recent releases: Turkey, constitutional issue, bearing portraits President Roosevelt, George Washington, American flag, three designs, six values; Hungary, Girl Scout Jamboree, four stamps.

Cranium Crackers

Whose Words?

Can you name the persons behind the following familiar quotations?

1. "I propose to fight it out on this line, if it takes all summer." (A Civil War notable).
2. "Don't forget that the world was made in six days." (He was born in 1766, died in 1821.)
3. "Every hero becomes a bore at last." (A noted writer of essays.)
4. "I have laid aside business, and gone a-fishing." (Not a president.)
5. "In winter I get up at night and dress by yellow candlelight." (His middle initial was "L")

Only Tact Can Silence A Noisy Radio

Dear Mrs. Price:

I can't think of a blessed thing you can do about your neighbors' radios.

Writing an anonymous letter is just one of those things I wouldn't start. The very word, 'anonymous' carries a blank with it. No one reads a letter of that sort to begin with, but consigns it instantly to the waste basket. Besides what we can't say over our signatures is not to be said at all.

Radios can be a nuisance. In summer our own are all very fine. But hearing one through open windows is rather horrible. The only trouble is that our own radios are annoying others, perhaps. The difference is that we turn ours off at nine or ten and they keep theirs going often far into the night.

Annoyances Can Be Overlooked

I called the other night on some people who live on a corner. The porch faced a stop light and brakes were screeching at such a rate I found myself gripping my chair. My hostess did not seem to notice any inconvenience whatever. She never heard it, and her baby upstairs slept the sweet slumber of the innocent. Not a sound. Not a peep.

It is all in getting used to it, I guess.

However, the family who keeps a radio on after the good burghers are in bed, or keeps it at top pitch all day, is going too far. Maybe a few of you could manage some sort of tactful approach, and suggest that although you think the world and all of them, you would think still more if they would just turn the switch at ten.

Maybe our children make a noise that keeps neighbors awake. Maybe we drive into the garage under their windows at two A. M. and make all the noise we like with garage doors. Maybe lots of things. Maybe our Johnnny is learning to play a horn. Or Sally Lou is taking piano and practicing when the next door baby wants to nap.

Too bad, but we cannot have the world to ourselves — and neither can anybody else.

Yours sincerely,
Olive Roberts Barton.

Sharp Decline To Wheat Market

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Wheat prices weakened here today and losses ranged to 1¾ cent a bushel before the market developed slight rallying power.

About half of the extreme loss was recovered at times, but near the close prices again tended downward to within fractions of the day's low marks.

The corn market also showed moderate rallying power, advancing about a cent from the session's lows. Sales of 85,000 bushels of U. S. corn were reported sold from Montreal to the United Kingdom.

Wheat closed ⅞ to 1¼ cent lower, September 64¼c to 64⅛c, December 65c to 64⅞c; corn ¼ to ⅞ cent off, September 41⅜c to 41⅝c, December 41⅝c to 41½c; oats ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower.

Upswing On Stocks Reduced

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP)—While many stock market favorites extended Wednesday's rally by substantial amounts in today's proveedings, profit takers nipped at the list with sufficient presistence to reduce or cancel early gains running to 2 or more points.

The upswing was at its best in the forenoon, with steels, motors, rails and specialties in front. Utilities took a rest after yesterday's sprint. Volume dwindled in the closing hours as quotations faded in numerous cases. In the initial forward push there was again an assortment of new highs for the year.

Despite the inclination of the ticker tape to loaf at the last, transfers were around 1,000,000 shares.

Trading circles still seemed to find considerable stimulation in the conservative shift of congress involving shelving of the administration's lending bill and the sharp curtailment of New Deal expenditures elsewhere.

Active stocks touching 1939 peaks included Du Pont, Western Union, Celanese and Safeway Stores.

Prominent on the upside the greater part of the day were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Great Northern, American Smelting, J. I. Case, Eastern Airlines, Du Pont, Westinghouse, American Can and U. S. Gypsum.

Bridges Makes Denial He Is Communist

Says At One Time He Jokingly Said He Belonged

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Harry Bridges, fighting deportation to his native Australia, testified Wednesday he believed the employer class could not be eliminated "except by poison or something," admitted his Longshore union had received communist aid and said he once jokingly said he was a member of that party.

He said the Longshoremen had received aid from the Communist party during the 1934 waterfront strike here, and he knew union men who were communists, although he reiterated his denial he was a member of the party or ever had paid dues, as a government witness had testified.

To support its charge that the west coast CIO leader is a deportable alien the government is trying to prove that he is a member of the Communist party and that the party advocates the violent overthrow of the government.

Dodges Attorney's Question

The "poison" remark came with a grin after Bridges had testified he did not think employers could be eliminated "by the ballot or any other means." Thomas B. Shoemaker, chief government counsel at the trial on Angel Island, followed up with the question, "Do you believe they should be eliminated?"

Bridges replied he thought the question "rather ridiculous—as long as we have a Democratic form of government."

"I have no love for the employers," Bridges said, "but a move to destroy them would destroy the Democratic form of government, so I don't see how anyone could bring about elimination of employers."

Bridges previously testified he had said jokingly he was a member of the Communist party, but added he did not believe the party was subversive.

"Do you believe in our form of government?" Shoemaker asked.

"I most certainly do."

Capitalism Is Different

"Do you believe in the capitalistic form of government?"

Bridges replied that Democracy and capitalism were different.

"If you mean the capitalistic form of society which to me means the exploitation of a lot of people for profit, I haven't got much use for it."

Bridges admitted the Longshoremen had received aid from the Communist party. Shoemaker asked whether the "Communist party was beneficial or detrimental to the labor movement as a whole."

"I don't know," Bridges replied thoughtfully. "I've known instances where the Communist policy, if carried out to its logical conclusion, would be detrimental. In other instances I would say it would be beneficial.

Return From Trip to South Dakota

Mrs. W. W. Bolton, rural route 3, and Mrs. Viola Hutchinson returned Tuesday from a motor trip to St. Joseph's Indian school at Chamberlain, S. D., where they took Miss Edith Bolton who will resume her work as secretary at the school.

Miss Bolton spent ten days here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bolton, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Canning, and friends in Sedalia.

Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. Hutchinson were conducted through the reservation and toured the Badlands.

LAUDS EFFICIENT ACTION OF KruGon

Credits Laxative-Tonic For Her Good Health; Appetite Has Returned; Getting Regular Elimination of Clogged Impurities

"I found KruGon a medicine I could depend upon to give desired results," said Mrs. Alice Hack, 550 Roberts St., Moberly, Missouri. "For the past four or five years all I knew was suffering for it seemed my entire body was filled with pain. Faulty elimination had taken its toll and every muscle and joint was stiff and sore. My knees and hips were so badly affected I had to have assistance at times to get about. I wasn't able to do much about the house, couldn't sleep at night and was in constant misery in spite of all I tried. I lost my appetite and eating held no enjoyment for me I felt so badly. But all this was soon changed once I began KruGon."

MRS. ALICE HACK

"My only regret is that I did not learn of KruGon long ago," continued Mrs. Hack. "Faulty elimination is no longer a worry to me, my knees and hips have limbered up, the awful pain has been relieved, I get around with ease and am able to do work I never thought of doing before. I enjoy a good appetite and it is really a blessing to be so well again after suffering the way I did. KruGon has proved a remarkable medicine."

KruGon is sold by McFarland and Robinson Drug Co., 104 W. Main St., this city, and by the leading druggists in surrounding towns.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
